

Coláiste Bríde, Enniscorthy, Co. Wexford

Deputy Principal: Niall Moynihan

Since the month of February, before the closure of schools, Mr. Lee Watson, a student-teacher at Coláiste Bríde Enniscorthy, organised a team of student journalists ranging from 1st to 5th Year.

The students were tasked with writing articles in response to the current events unfolding in the world, their first working title, "COVID-19: Can we stop it?". Their articles were to be hosted by Mr Watson's website (co-developed by Mr. Aidan Roche, also of Coláiste Bríde), JCScience.ie. This would be under the format of the first issue of an online magazine.

The purpose of this project, as outlined by Mr Watson, is to provide secondary school students with a platform for their voices to be heard on the current issues of the world, offering an alternative way for students to take ownership over their learning and education.

The magazine was further developed via Microsoft Teams following the closure of schools, and has since gone live on the website www.jcscience.ie, and heavily promoted on twitter (@jcscience_ie) by Coláiste Bríde, UCD's School of Education and many more.

Coláiste Bríde and Mr. Watson thank the following students for their involvement: Marcelina Brudek, Daara Durodola, Emily Cleary, Hannah White, Aoife Browne, Sienna O'Neill & Jenny Murphy.

There are hopes to continue this project into future issues, involving not only the original team, but due to the nature of the website, it is also possible for any student around the country to get involved via the website's contact page.
